

Table travel allowances for Erasmus outgoing students from the University of Mannheim

The travel allowance is calculated using a distance table provided by the EU and the distance (straight-line distance) from Mannheim to the location of the host university, which is calculated automatically using an EU tool. To treat everyone equally, the distance from Mannheim to the destination is calculated, even if you are traveling from a different location.

Participants who use lower-emission means of transport such as bus, train or carpooling for the majority of their journey will receive a higher flat rate than for air travel, for example. Green travel does not include traveling by ship, traveling alone by car or CO₂-compensated flying. A combination of rail and ship, for example, can be “green” if the rail portion of your trip accounts for more than 50% of the journey.
