

Assistant Professorship in Macroeconomics and Development

The Department of Economics at the University of Mannheim invites applications for an assistant professorship in

Macroeconomics and Development

Applicants are expected to show outstanding commitment to research and must have obtained a PhD when taking up the position. The initial contract will be issued for up to six years. Promising candidates are invited to initiate a tenure merit evaluation process in order to move on to a permanent senior position at the Department.

The department has strong international ties, a widely recognized graduate school, and has been awarded special support as a Center of Excellence by the German government. Salaries and teaching load are competitive at the European level. Teaching can be entirely in English.

Applications should include a resume, three letters of recommendation and at least one recent research paper. The review of applications begins November 18 and the search continues until the positions are filled.

Interviews will be conducted at the 2019 European Economics Job Market in Rotterdam.
